

New York University

The establishment of this University in 1831 was a historical landmark in the emancipation of higher education in America from the strictures of service to the few to freedom of educational opportunity for the many.

In commemoration of the granting of the University Charter, annual tribute is paid to the Founders by signaling the accomplishment of those degree candidates and recipients who have distinguished themselves among their fellow students through consistent evidence of outstanding scholarship.

Chen-Wei Kuo

having thus achieved a place in the highest bracket of scholastic preferment recognized by the University is therefore presented as a mark of special honor this
